

Sequence for Perinatal & Infant Mental Health Specialisation – GDAMHS 2022

Students commencing their GDAMHS are recommended to follow the sequence below. This sequence will suit those students who are comfortable with a study load of 600 hours across one semester and three teaching periods.

Please note that specialisation units with a grey background are only available for enrolment within the select Teaching Period (i.e., 8ALF019 is only available within TP6 whereas 8ALK010 is available within all teaching periods). Based on this, you should choose your study path accordingly.

If you would like any help with choosing your study pathway, please contact support@heti.edu.au

Semester 1	Teaching Period 4	Teaching Period 5	Teaching Period 6
Innovation and improvement in MH care (100201)	Understanding mental health care in Australia (8ALK010)	Introduction to Research (8ALF014)	Working with families (8ALF019)
Therapeutic perspectives across the lifespan (100202)	Evidence-based practice (8ALF013)	Observation Theory & Practice in Perinatal & Infant Mental Health (8APF035)	Enabling Effective Mental Health Care in the Perinatal Period (8APK034)